March of Dimes Hits Full Stride

MANY NEAR-BY LOCAL UNITS SPEARHEADING EAST JORDAN DRIVE

With the entire county organized for the annual March of Dimes campaign, Mrs. Walter Davis, county chairman, reports the following local committees are all actively functioning: East Jordan, Hollis Drew; Charlevoix, Dallas Henry; Boyne City, Gilbert Lindsay; Ironton, Mrs. Mary Bennett; Boyne Falls, Mrs. Myrtle Hausler; Walloon Lake, Postmaster Carroll.

Early reports from East Jordan indicate a realization of the importance of this effort with many organizations planning special events and fund raising features. Among the first scheduled are the Rotary and Legion sponsored events—Rotary will repeat their successful pancake and sausage supper of a year ago and the American Legion will stage a grand March of Dimes Parade followed by a special Benefit Bingo game. Dates on these two features will be announced next week.

Several local units even beat the starting gun of the Drive, the 15th, and so the contributions of the O. E. S., the Helping Hand Club, the Rock Elm Grange and the Eveline Farm Bureau form the spearhead of the East Jordan drive. This is a grand start and every civic group is urged to hold their special activity as soon as possible. Individual mailing cards are now in the mail—miniature "iron lung" collectors are on location in business places—clerks are wearing coin collectors. Do YOUR part now!

"Today's Driving Lesson"

Introduction Story

About 1,586 are dead and 43,840 injured as a result of accidents on Michigan streets and highways during 1950.

With this shocking record marked up, Michigan parents will have to carry out New Years resolutions of safe and skillful driving during 1951—or face criticism from their teen-age sons and daughters.

For their own youngsters may be among 32,550 students learning to drive scientifically in AAA Driver-Training courses taught in 305 Michigan high schools.

In an effort to avoid parental embarrassment, this newspaper, with the assistance of Automobile Club of Michigan, has prepared a series of 10 instructive driving lessons for adults. Condensed from the Driver-Training text, "Sportsmanlike Driving," they are resigned to help parents "bone up" for a good behind-the-wheel showing.

The first of the series asks: "Do you have the 12 habits of the expert driver?"

First Story

Lady Luck hasn't deserted the highway completely.

But in any group of 1,000 middle-aged drivers who have never had an auto accident, only one is really "just a lucky guy." The remaining 999 auto pilots, if examined, exhibit at least eight of the 12 physical and mental habits of an expert driver.

Michigan teachers instructing in 305 high school AAA Driver-Education courses are impressing this small "luck" ratio in the minds of the 32,550 teen-agers they are teaching to drive this year.

Older drivers, whose highway habits have slipped a bit, can prevent an otherwise inevitable future accident by a serious review of the same 12 habits, says Ernest P. Davis, Automobile Club of Michigan safety and traffic director.

Teachers in the Auto Club-sponsored behind-the-wheel course stress these "keep-healthy" habits:

(1) No drinking before driving; (2) alert observation of all traffis laws, signals and signs; (3) constant anticipation of "what the other guy may do next;" (4) heavy attention to rear view mirror; (5) reduction of speed at potential danger points; (6) signaling intentions;

(7) Using horn only as warning signal; (8) regularly checking safety equipment; (9) staying in one lane of traffic until necessary to move out; (10) refusing to gamble on traffic maneuvers; (11) starting on time to make appointments; and (12) controlling speed to match highway, weather, visibility and traffic conditions.

Road courtesy counts too, say the teachers. Most accident-less motorists are as courteous on the road as they are in their living rooms.

"No Place Like Home"

The Maxwell family who so capably presented "The Boarding House Reach" last year will return to the East Jordan gymnasium again this year in "No Place Like Home." This is another three act comedy by Donald Payton, chosen for the Senior Play.

The Maxwells decide to spend their annual vacation at home, but complications set in when their relatives come to visit them.

Hear the two grandfathers argue over just every day problems that occur in the Maxwell home.

Servicemen Entitled To Tax Exemption of $2000 on Homestead

Home-owning servicemen and those about to enter the Armed Forces are reminded by the Veterans of Foreign Wars that veterans homestead tax exemptions could apply to them.

The 13th District of Michigan V. F. W. Adjutant Don M. Draher of Indian River, stated that many persons being recalled to active duty are not aware of the fact that the law may be of benefit to them.

The homestead exemption act provides for a tax exemption on $2000 of real estate owned and used as a home by members of the Armed Forces who have entered service any time since Jan. 1, 1940.

The exemption applies during the period of service and for one year afterward.

The exemption can only be granted where the value of the home is less than $7,500.

The District adjutant pointed out that separate applications for the exemption must be filed each year by the serviceman or his wife.

Cherry Pie Baking Contest

FIFTY-FIVE COUNTIES IN THE STATE TAKE PART

The 1951 State Cherry Pie Baking Contest is well underway, with more than one-half the counties of the Upper and Lower Peninsulas of Michigan registered to take part so far, and the total will probably reach at least 55 counties. This is the Nineteenth Annual Cherry Pie Baking Contest, according to Alex Sinclair of the East Jordan Canning Company.

Sinclair was appointed to direct the State Contest for 1951 by Harvey Norris, President of the Michigan Canners Association. The contest is spensored by the processors and growers of cherries in the state.

Started in 1932 by a small group of cherry canners in an effort to stimulate an interest in the cherry market, the first National Cherry Pie Baking Contest was held in the Morrison Hotel in Chicago on the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's Birthday. The contest, which was at first a movement to gain good will and publicity for the cherry industry, has developed into more than that in Michigan, which now leads all the states in the production of the nation's favorite pie fruit.

Last year two contests were held, one in the Upper Peninsula and three winners from there competed in the Lower Peninsula contest in Grand Rapids. In this contest, Florence Rompainnen of Houghton, Mich., won the trip to Chicago for the Annual National Cherry Pie Baking Contest. The wide interest of the counties is due to the co-operation of the Home Demonstration and 4-H Club departments of the Michigan State College Extension Services, who feel that this is a valuable educational opportunity for hundreds of teen-age girls who take it in each year.

The project starts with the local contest in the Home Economics Department of the high schools, or in the local 4-H Club organizations throughout the state. Winners of these local contests then compete in the county finals. The county winners are awarded a two-day trip to Grand Rapids early in February, where they compete in the state finals.

The state queen and four runners-up receive cash prizes, and the Queen will represent Michigan in the Grand National Contest in Chicago on Washington's Birthday.

Girls in these contests will be judged on several points. General appearance of the pie, texture of the crust, flavor and consistency of filling, poise and personality of the contestants will be taken into consideration. Any girl between the ages of 15 and 21 will be eligible to enter the contest.

Mr. and Mrs. William Golding, both postmasters of Indian River, reported theft of mail sacks and an investigation turned up their son, Glenn, 22, as the culprit.

Young Golding admitted stealing mail sacks from Boyne City, Posen, Indian River and Vanderbilt between Dec. 27 and Jan 12, cashing $667 in postal receipts and burning the letters and mail sacks.

Although jobless, Golding had bought a second-hand car. His father is postmaster at Indian River and his mother is postmistress at nearby Vanderbilt.

State Police Com'r Don Leonard To Speak at Petoskev. Jan. 24th

Dear Fellow Citizen:

We are fortunate in being able to bring to this area State Police Commissioner Don Leonard to talk on "Civilian Defense: What We Can Do." He will appear at the Petoskey High School Auditorium on Wednesday evening, 8 p. m., January 24th.

Commissioner is well prepared to discuss such a subject. During World War II our National Government sent him to England to study their defense methods against mass bombing attacks, and since then he has frequently been called to Washington as one of the key men in civilan defense planning. He is a vigorous compelling speaker, and can answer those questions we have had in our minds about what we in these small rural communities can do to be of help.

This letter is being addressed to you because we feel you are a responsible citizen and interested in the welfare of your community. Would you please try to interest a representative group to attend this meeting. It is especially important that medical personnel, school officials, and city and county officers and employees come, the latter group because of the many features concerning protection of water and sewage handling, protecting of power plants, transportation and road problems, and other vital matters that Mr. Leonard could make useful suggestions regarding methods of managing.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. Harris V. Lilga

Early Care Needed For Dairy Calves

Careful attention to a few pointers in raising dairy calves often means a more successful job in getting the calf off to a good start, report members of the Michigan State College dairy department.

Feeding, they say, is the first consideration. Feed milk at the rate of one pound a day for each 10 pounds of calf weight. This means eight pounds of milk for an 80 pound calf, which would normally be fed in two feeds of four pounds (about two quarts) each per day. Feed the milk at a regular time and be sure the temperature is around 90 to 95 degrees Fahrenheit.

Fast drinking often leads to scouring troubles, the dairymen say. Drinking can be slowed down by elevating the pail in a rack or manger. Many farmers use nipple pails and find them helpful. A caution in using a nipple pail is to be sure it is kept clean.

Most dairymen prefer to start calves at about two weeks of age on whole grains. A mixture of three parts whole oats, three parts shelled corn, and one part linseed oil meal or soybean oil meal has been used quite successfully. This is fed until about three months of age, when a ground grain mixture should be fed. A satisfactory growing mixture is 150 pounds of ground oats; 100 pounds of yellow corn meal; 100 pounds wheat bran; and 50 pounds of high protein concentrate. Many dairymen just feed the regular herd ration.

Clean, dry, well-bedded pens that are free from drafts are also a "must" to eliminate danger from colds and pneumonia. Some dairymen are using slatted or grated floors which are raised above the regular floor level. This aids in keeping the bedding dry and also reduces the amount of bedding needed.

Over-cooking of vegetables in the cabbage and turnip family will result in a strong flavor. Cook for a short period of time.

Cooking potatoes in milk as in scalloped potatoes usually results in curdling. Thicken the milk with flour before combining with the potatoes.

FARM FACTS from your County Agricultural Agent

Ed. Rebman, Co. Agr'l Agent

IS CHEAP SEED CHEAP?

What forage crop should I seed? This question is asked by many farmers when they come to the office of Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. Much interest is being shown regarding seed supplies.

The agent points out that there is a widespread difference in the cost of northern grown alfalfa seed & medium red clover. Clover seed is abundant, while northern grown alfalfa is in short supply. Supplies of southern grown alfalfa seed are abundant, bnt this seed is unadapted to Michigan conditions. Test have shown that southern grown and Argentine alfalfa are much lower yielding than northern grown strains, beside being much less winterhardy.

Agent Rebman agrees with C. M. Harrison, Michigan State College forage specialist, that alfalfa is Michigan's most productive legume.

Difference in seed prices between adapted, northern grown alfalfa and medium red clover are not particularly important when a good, vigorous stand is established. Alfalfa remains productive for two or three years whereas red clover is a one year crop. This spreads the cost of alfalfa seed over the two or three year period.

It is only when seeding failures occur that seed price differentials are important. It is always cheaper to have a failure with cheap seed than with high priced seed. It is always important to avoid seeding failures and particularly so this year with alfalfa. Many of the seeding failures can be avoided if good cultural pratices are used. In estabishng a good vigorous stand of alfalfa, the following practices are essential:

1. Test for acidity and add lime only if necessary.
2. Apply 400 pounds per acre of high analysis fertilizer prior to or at seeding time. Order and accept delivery of fertilizer early.
3. Prepare a fine firm seedbed, which helps to insure shallow planting and makes for good contact between seed and soil.
4. Seed shallow (¼ to ½ inch) and cultipack to cover.
5. Remove nurse crop by pasturing or cutting for hay on soils where moisture is insufficient to mature the grain crop and secure a seeding.

Sow a mixture of four pounds of alfalfa, three pounds of brome grass and three pounds ofmedium red clover per acre.

CONTROL CATTLE GRUBS:

The proublem of cattle grubs is again confronting farmers, says Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. He has information on their control, received from Ray L. James, extension specialist in entomology at Michigan State College.

The grubs may occur in the backs of cattle from now until about next June, James states. This extended period is is mainly due to the life cycles of the two cattle grubs common in Michigan. The common cattle grub is usually present in the backs of cattle from about March 15 until June.

Rotenone, at this time of the year, can be used either as a dust or salve. The strength of either should be one and one-half percent Sprays are not suggested during the winter in Michigan. If they are used, it is at the risk of the farmer. Insecticides, other than rotenone, have not proved too successful to date, James states.

The one and one-half percent rotenone dust is usually more easily obtainable than the salve, the specialist points out. The dust should be worked into openings leading to the grubs. This can be done by using the hand, a brush, or a power duster to work the dust through the hair to the hide. A salve can by hand to the top of of the warble.

Treatments should be put on every 30 days or oftener, James suggests. The need for treatment depends entirely on the presence of the warbles.

Treatments by individual farmer are not so effective as those conducted on a community or county basis, according to the entomology specialist.

Beware of the man who talks much of his honesty.

The Eavesdropper

One night, at a party, French statesman Talleyrand was discussing international politics with a foreign ambassador who was the dullest member of the diplomatic corps. For endless minutes, the ambassador talked on, repeating himself over and over. Talleyrand, praying for deliverance, nodded his head wearily.

The diplomat had been talking for an hour, when another guest, seated at the other end of the room, nudged his companion and pointed to the yawning guest.

"Shh;" he whispered. "You are overheard!"

Voice of Experience

George: The government needs money to run the army and the navy. Without soldiers and sailors we wouldn't be safe.

Gracie: I can see you've never been out with one.

PLAYFUL BURGLAR

One night two safe-breakers entered a bank. One approached the safe, sat down on the floor, took off his shoes and socks, and started to turn the dial of the safe with his toes.

"What's the matter?" said his pal. "Let's open this thing and get out of here."

"Naw, it'll only take a minute longer and we'll drive them fingerprint experts nuts."

Mutual Adoration

Jay: "Tell me, does Anne's husband treat her well?"

Kay: "Oh, indeed yes. He kisses her occasionally."

Jay: "And does she treat him well?"

Kay: "Just as well. As a matter of fact, she retaliates in kind."

HUMAN WARDROBE

After major surgery, an Irish patient came out of the ether in a semiprivate ward and exclaimed joyfully, "Faith, and that's over."

"Don't be too sure," counseled a gloomy voice from the next bed. "The rascals left a sponge inside of me and had to cut me open again."

At that moment the surgeon stuck his head in the door and asked, "Anybody see my hat and coat?"

The Irishman fainted.

Maybe They Ain't For Sale

Did you ever stop to think that the poor old duck's business is always in a slump, due to her lack of advertising? She lays her eggs in seclusion—she never makes any noise about it. But when the hen lays her eggs—her cackles are heard far and near. She tells the world about it—she advertises!

The result is, the world eats hens' eggs by the millions, while the poor old duck's eggs are unsought.

ILLITERATE

A man-about-town was in serious trouble and called up his lawyer. "It's a dirty trick," he screamed into the phone, "a dirty trick."

The lawyer soothed him with, "Calm down, calm down, and tell me what's the trouble."

"That girl's husband has made a horrible mistake," screamed the man. "He's named me as co-respondent in a divorce case and I can't even write!"

SHORT STORY

The Last Straw

By Lula W. Kellams

IN THEIR EARLIER married years Flora and Ralph Wilson were an ideal couple. Both were handsome and jolly, with identical tastes and friends. But, as they grew older, Flo matured, while Ralph tried to say boyish and frisky.

3-Minute Fiction

"Why not act your age?" she often asked, wistfully. "We have such a lovely, comfortable home for middle aged folks. Our department store is dignified enough for older management. You don't have to keep up a front."

Ralph would chuckle. "Not jealous of your old man, are you, baby? No foolin', I don't show the years a bit, do I?"

"It's not honest," Flo contended. "Everyone recognizes middle age when he sees it. Anyone can recognizes a toupee."

But she knew when to hush. They mustn't quarrel over trifles. Of course, she didn't think this growing breach in their ages was a trifle, but Ralph did.

Every day she felt more strongly that something must be done to preserve their marriage; and every day she could think of no possible solution.

One morning she said, "I—I don't feel like going to the store, dear. I'm sure Miss Gray can manage alone. There is housecleaning and things to do here."

"Okay, dear," Ralph agreed readily, kissing her good-bye.

Fear stabbed Flo. Why did he agree so hastily? Why didn't he ask her what was wrong? She had an impulse to change her mind and go. But tears and self-pity were aching in her eyes and throat.

To conceal her feelings, she said briskly, "Wear this old hat, dear. I want to send that one to the cleaner's."

"But it's so shabby and it doesn't fit well."

Stubbornly Flo held out the old straw hat until he donned it reluctantly, leaving his soft gray felt on a chair. She refused to watch him swagger off, whistling like their son Danny when he was a college freshman.

Tears blurred her vision while she picked up things and cleaned and swept. Wasn't there something that would save their marriage, something like taking reducing exercises, or turning kittenish?

The idea was revolting. She had no heart to compete with their three young daughters. If— if she had just begun years ago trying to remain glamorous instead of turning into a mother, maybe things would have worked out better.

BY NOON, she felt less frustrated. She even hummed while she whipped up Ralph's favorite cake and cooked potroast. If she had an especially appetizing supper, and the children were in jubilant mood, maybe Ralph would see how well off he was. Maybe, just once, he would forget his diet.

At 5:05 the children called saying they had to stay for play practice. Flo's spirits drooped. Would Ralph call, too, pretending that business detained him, leaving her alone in the dark, silent house?

"Funniest thing happened," Ralph said. "When I took off my hat my toupee came off, too."

She waited with apprehension. At 6:15 sharp she heard the car stop, then Ralph's step on the porch.

"Supper ready, Mom?" he called. Dread gripped Flo. He'd called her mom instead of baby, or dear! Just one day's staying home made her seem old-fashioned to him!

He strode into the living-room. "Mom, you're looking at a successful man! Today I landed that fat Atkinson account. Mr. Kimley, their new buyer, said I looked like a settled, respectable business man."

He chuckled at Flo's astonished face. "Funniest thing happened. Remember how tight that old straw hat was? Well, the minute I took it off in front of that flippy Miss Gray and the office force, they all started giggling. My toupee came off too, so I glared— like I meant to look fifty, instead of thirty. It's a wonderful feeling of relief. What's for supper, Mom?"

"Potroast and your favorite cake, Dad!" As they marched in to supper, arm in arm, Flo just knew that there never had been such a lovely bald head as her husband's."

Aim Farm Plans At Soil Saving Says MSC Specialist

Planning next year's cropping pattern to fit conservation practices is a good job for winter days, says Leonard Braamse, extension soil conservationist at Michigan State College.

Row crops cause most erosion on sloping land. As these crops move to new fields, size up the land and plan to keep the soil at some while growing the crops, he advises.

Running rows across or counter to the major slope is an easy conservation practice on gentle slopes. Each row then offers resistence to the down-slope sweep of run-off rainfall. On well-drained soils, make rows as nearly level or contoured as possible. On soils with heavy and tight subsoils, rows should be given some slope, or terrace may be used.

On any long slope, it is wise to break the length of slope with some intercepting shallow waterways put in across the slope with just enough grade to carry off at a low velocity, the soil conservationist says. Such a waterway may be either a terrace or a division.

Medium and steeper slopes are better cared for with alternate cross-slope strips of cultivated crops with strips of grass or meadow crops. Meadow strips lose no soil themselves. Instead, they decrease runoff flowing down the slope into cultivated strips. Meadow strips also filter and hold soil that washes out of cultivated strips.

Lengthening the rotation with another year of meadow is a sound conservation practice in many areas. Steep fields often will return more dividends if they are in permanent or semi-permanent grass.

Farm Fillers

Ladino clover is growing in favor as a mixture in dairy cattle pastures, say Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors. Indications are that this new, palatable, high-protein clover is being tried out by members in about three-fourths of Michigan's associations.

Chicks started early in the year will produce lots of eggs for you during the fall months when egg prices will be highest, say Michigan State College poultrymen.

Social security for farm workers went into effect January 1, 1951.

The use of the strip cup as a forewarner of mastitis is favored by good Michigan dairymen. Dairy Herd Improvement Association testers recently stated that well over half of the 1,000 farmers they tested for used the strip cup regularly.

Make your kitchen safer by keeping knives and other cutting tools out of the reach of children, say Michigan State College farm safety specialists. Carelessness causes many accidents with sharp tools.

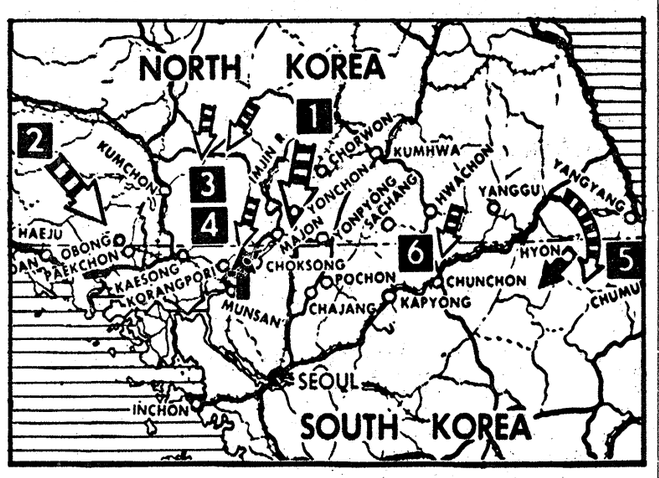

If we deplete the fertility of the soil, we are robbing the next generation of its heritage.

The electric wiring system of a new house should be planned for the future as well as for the present, say Michigan State College house planning authorities.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Reds Launch Offensive in Korea; U.S. Works on Japanese Treaty; Army Calls for 80,000 Draftees

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

North Korean and Chinese Communist troops concentrated for another blow on U. N. forces below the 38th parallel. Chief concentration points were at Yonchon (1) and northwest of Seoul (2). A Red attack (3) northeast of Kumchon, pushed back the South Koreans more than a mile. Red patrols were near Kaesong (4). South Korean troops fought a preliminary battle near Hyon (5). Reds were also massed north of Chunchon (6).

KOREA:

The Story Repeated

The story of the Korean battle seemed to repeat itself. Forced to withdraw from North Korea after pushing the Communists out of South Korea and almost to the Manchurian border, U. N. forces received the full force of Chinese and North Korean troops as they plunged south of the 38th parallel.

U. N. troops gave ground and further retreats appear in store for them. The main feature of the attack was the overwhelming numbers of Chinese and North Koreans rushing U. N. defense positions. At least 200,000 men were thrown into the first attack.

The Communist plan for the conquest of South Korea was to separate the eastern and western sections of the defense line, isloate them and then destroy them at will.

Meanwhile, observers who recently returned from Korea report the morale of the soldier at the battlefront much better than that on the homefront.

Americans at home were pictured as frightened, frustrated, and swept with recurrent waves of defeatism and despair. The men in battle were pictured as neither frightened nor discouraged.

There was no criticism of American leadership in the war or criticism of the fighting ability of any nation's troops.

ARMY:

New Call Issued

The army called for 80,000 draftees in March, raising total draft quotas to 450,000 since the Korean outbreak. Eighty thousand had already been scheduled for January and February.

With the armed forces building toward a manpower total of some 3½ million as rapidly as possible, the army anticipated a combat strength equivalent to 24 divisions when the current expansion goal is reached next July 1.

An infantry division numbers 18,000 men and is a self contained fighting unit with supporting weapons such as tanks and artillery. At the beginning of the Korean conflict the army had 10 divisions, only one at full war strength. It had 11 regular divisions, with four national guard divisions and two guard regimental combat teams (usually 5,000 men) as of January 1.

Selective Service officials reported 217,000 men had been delivered to the army up to January.

TAXES:

Higher in 1951

With the new congress in session, President Truman was expected to ask for more taxes at any moment to meet the mounting cost of the nation's defense.

Although the size of the new tax program was not disclosed, one adminisration official reported the President would try to put the government as nearly as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis. The program, however, will include higher personal and corporation levies.

It seems unlikely that a new tax program can bring expenditures and receipts into balance because spending for the fiscal year 1951 may reach $75,000,000,000. The present tax program, including the excess-profits tax, will yield revenues of only about $45,000,000,000.

Generals Wait

Maj. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, chief of staff, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur are shown keeping a somber vigil at Haneda airport for the arrival of the body of Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, late commanding officer of the 8th U. S. army, who was killed in an accident in Korea. Walker's body was being sent to the U. S. for burial in Arlington cemetery.

JAPAN:

U.S. Plans Treaty

The United States made it clear, if in a round-about way, that Japan will get a peace treaty. The U. S. handed Russia a note that said in effect that this country was going to negotiate a treaty—without Russia if necessary.

The important item in the note from the American viewpoint was the paragraph that stated: The United States believes it is reasonable for Japan, upon conclusion of a peace treaty, to make arrangements for self-defense which could "include provision for the stationing in Japan of troops of the United States and other nations."

In other words, the U. S. made it clear that Japan would be allowed to rearm and that this country has every intention of keeping Japan in the democratic column.

The note let fly with a haymaker by stating that rearming Japan was necessary because "irresponsible militarism has not been driven from the world."

The note told the Russians that the Formosa question must be settled in the light of the U.N. charter, "the obligations of which prevail over any other international agreement."

This appeared to be a diplomatic way of telling the Soviet that the U. S. does not consider itself bound to hand Formosa over to the Chinese Communists whose armies are fighting U.N. forces in Korea.

CASUALTIES:

Total at 38,325

As of January 1 the army had announced casualties in the Korean fighting totaling 38,325. That was an increase of almost 2,000 over the previous casualty list.

The number of dead mounted to 6,432, including 5,742 killed in action, 684 who died of wounds and six dead among those who had been reported missing.

There were 27,012 wounded, including the 684 who later died of their injuries. The number of missing were listed at 4,753.

Of the total, the army suffered 32,066 casualties, the marines 5,524, the navy 429 and the air force 306.

MARCH OF DIMES

March of Dimes Fund Campaign

The 1951 March of Dimes campaign began Monday throughout the United States as a massive attack against the only epidemic disease known to man that is still on the increase—a disease that in the last three years has stricken more than 100,000 people and cost the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis an unprecedented $58,000,000 for patient-care alone.

In 1950 March of Dimes funds had assisted in some measure more than 54,000 polio victims at a cost of $20,000,000. The national fund at the moment is at the lowest point it has been since the organization was founded in 1938, officials reported.

The foundation reported four out of every five of the stricken needed—and received—financial assistance.

BIG FOUR:

Conference Plan

Some weeks ago the United States, Britain, and France proposed that another big four conference be held in an effort to settle the many pressing world problems. After long weeks of waiting, the Russians replied.

Officials would not reveal just what was in the Kremlin reply. It was evident, however, that the western powers were disappointed and that a big-four meeting was not closer than when it was first proposed.

It was believed that Russia was not prepared for any unqualified discussion of the many galling points of friction between the western democracies and the totalitarian Soviet system.

It was also rumored that Russia wanted the western powers to accept the Prague declaration which served notice that the Communist led nations of eastern Europe would not tolerate rearmament of western Germany.

Russia was also reported to have taken the stand that Communist China would be represented before any discussion of the explosive situation in the far east could be undertaken.

No one in his right mind could believe that the United States would accept any of the conditions. Thus the conclusion that a big four conference is not likely in the near future.

ACHESON:

Production and Faith

Secretary of State Dean Acheson gave the United States a prescription for 1951—"production and faith".

Acheson, in a radio interview, said we have the power to retaliate against any aggressor who attacks us and our friends and that power cannot be overlooked.

"We expect to make ourselves respected and to deter aggression," he said.

"The prescription which we need today is the prescription which Mr. Churchill gave to England in 1940—blood and toil, sweat and tears—and may I add, faith—faith in our country, faith that the great task before us can be done and that it will be done."

Acheson's statement was remarkable in that he echoed a growing belief throughout the country. Americans who had been described as frightened and frustrated in 1950 seemed to be settling down quickly to a new year of sacrifice and determination.

The last few months have been called America's darkest hour, but they may be even darker before the United States is fully rearmed and ready to face its enemies.

TRAFFIC:

A War at Home

While American troops were being killed in Korea, Americans at home slaughtered themselves on the highways during the Christmas and New Years' holidays.

Complete tabulations were not complete for the New Years' holiday, but during Christmas there were 724 violent deaths in the United States, 545 of them in traffic mishaps.

The accident rate was more than 100 above the number of persons killed in traffic accidents during the 1949 Christmas holiday. The 1950 toll almost equaled the record of 555 set in 1936.

In the city of Los Angeles alone there were 11 traffic deaths, 900 injured, and a total of 1,084 accidents. It was significant to note that police in that city charged 352 persons with driving while intoxicated and another 1,222 were charged with drunkenness.

Only one state—South Dakota—escaped without a single reported fatality that could be attributed to the Christmas observance.

Witness

Mrs. Ann Moos Remington, ex-wife of former commerce official, William Remington, testified in federal court that seven years ago Remington turned over "top secret" explosives formulas to confessed spy Elizabeth Bentley for transmission to Russia. Remington is being tried for perjury.

MARSHALL:

Let's Go Easy

Secretary of Defense George Marshall warned the nation in the closing days of 1950 to go easy, that "a too rapid attempt at mobilization was apt to delay the ultimate speed" of rearmament.

Marshall said that there is "a tendency to feel that the more rapidly we appropriate billions and the more rapidly men are called into service, the safer we will be." That isn't true, he explained.

The Good Must Fight

Lesson for January 21, 1951

YOU WOULD think that if ever there arrived on this planet a really good person, he would be popular with everybody. People are tired of meanness, they are sick of being lied to and cheated. They are tired of the sins of others, even tired of their own. So if a really good person should appear, one in whom was no shadow, completely transparent to the Eternal Light, wouldn't everyone flock to him, wouldn't he have the human race in the palm of his hand, as it were, in a short time?

Dr. Foreman

* * *

Agelong War

THE ANSWER is No. It is not well to be too optimistic about human nature. As a matter of fact, some of the best persons history has known met some of the bitterest opposition. Indeed, when One came who was completely good, whose life was all light and no shadow, he was no better treated and no more warmly welcomed than less good persons have been.

Jesus Christ had his enemies, strong and well-organized. The number of those who believed in him was comparatively small; the number who did not believe or ignored him altogether, was enormous.

The history of mankind is the history of a war, the age long war between good and evil, between God and his enemies. The story of Jesus is one chapter in this history, the most important by far, but by no means the first one or the last.

* * *

Why Was Jesus Hated?

THE READER should examine the record in the Gospels and try to think for himself who opposed Jesus, and why they did so. One striking fact is that Jesus' enemies were not what we call the "lower classes," much less the "criminal classes." His enemies were rather from out of the top drawer, as we might say. They were the financial, social and religious leaders of his time. They finally got him executed as a criminal.

If there had never been any one to contradict the records of the Sanhedrin, that high court of Jerusalem, and those records had become recognized as the truth, Jesus would have gone down in history, if remembered at all, as a troublemaker, a lawless and worthless man, whose execution was a protection to society.

Why were these leading men, Jesus' "distinguished" contemporaries, so wrong about Jesus?

* * *

"As he is, so are we..."

THE READER should think this out for himself. One reason can be mentioned here: It is very easy for wrong to be so long accepted and so strongly entrenched that it is universally taken for right. Then when the right comes along, especially when in the form of an idea suggested by some one not of the upper crust, it actually seems to be wrong. People kept long in a dark room find light painful!

Any one who tries to follow Jesus will find himself up against the same sort of opposition.

Any one who proposes to live as Jesus lived, or to change our accustomed patterns of society in the direction which Jesus pointed out, will be called (as he was) a crackpot, a dreamer, an impractical fellow who does not know enough to go in when it rains.

* * *

Our Divine Alliance

CONSIDER one example of this. A Christian who makes up his mind to dedicate his body a "living sacrifice" to God, and therefore not to handicap himself with the drug of alcohol, is certain, in many places, to be considered a sort of crank. It is not that people will laugh at him, though they will: people will be angry with him for his stand. They will do all they can to make him break his pledge.

Instead of admiring a clean and free life, many people are not content unless they can soil that cleanness and break down that freedom. So to stand for Christ in any aspect of life is not easy. But we need to remember we fight no lonely fight; our cause is not forlorn.

Just as Jesus in Galilee was always on the side of those who were beaten and battered by sin and evil, but still fighting, so now the ever-living Christ is always on the side of those who in their hearts desire good and not evil, cleanness and not dirt, truth and not lies.

Hi, Mr. Robin! — This is a story of a little boy who was very anxious for spring to come and so eagerly watched for the first robin. Colored illus.

Behold Thy Daughter — Patterson: Setting of this story is a Scottish fishing village a hundred years ago. Thurza Gare was the daughter of a poor fisherman, but even as a child was very ambitious. First she secured an education, then owned a fish-curing firm. When she turned to smuggling a Yankee captain was her partner.

Cousins and Commisars — Logan: A kindly humorous account of the authors visit to the little Yugoslavia village which had been her mother's childhool home. It is a close-up picture of the life of the Yugoslav people.

The Native's Return — Adamic: Another Yugoslav book, written by an American immigrant who returned to his native land for a visit. It is a travel book but much more than that. It describes a country that few people knew as it really was. This book has a 1946 copyright and so can give a background that will be interesting, and also will help one to understand the attitude of the people under present conditions. These two books are very fine additions to the International Books list.

When Michigan Was Young — Fasquelle: A history of the Grand Traverse region, written by a Petoskey woman. There is much about the Indians in this book as they had a great deal to do with the early country. The author is in her 83rd year.

Far Lands — J. N. Hall: The people who settled the South Sea Islands have left a legend of their wanderings. From this legend the author has written a novel of adventure and romance.

Son of a Hundred Kings — Costain: A novel of the nineties. A 6-year-old boy arrived in a Canadian town with a placard on his coat giving his name and saying: "He has no money. He is going to his father in Ontario, Can. Be kind to him." On the day of the boy's arrival his father committed suicide. The town decided to "Be kind to him." This story tells of the life of Ludar Prentice up to his 20's, and also of the life of many of the other inhabitants.

The Feast — Kennedy: Describes the last 6 days of a Cornish seaside hotel. The maid decided to give a picnic for three children who had barely escaped drowning. The good-hearted guests attended the party and so were saved when the hotel was destroyed. The other guests perished when the cliff collapsed and crushed the building.

Champion Road — Tilsley: An English novel which is a story of the marriage of Johnathan and Nellie Brig.

Value Your Health More Than Riches

Some folks think that fine clothes and fine, big houses are the most important things in life, but these things really don't mean too much if a person doesn't feel well enough to enjoy them. Most folks don't realize this, but Mrs. Lucy Braswell, of Route 2, Stone Mountain, Ga., realizes it very well. Mrs. Braswell takes HADACOL, and by taking HADACOL she found she is helping her system overcome deficiencies of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Braswell's own statement: "I have been sick for some time with stomach disturbances. I began taking HADACOL and I have been taking it about six weeks. I am so much better and much stronger. I will continue to take HADACOL. It sure has helped me. I tell my friends about HADACOL. I can't praise HADACOL too much. I am 59 years old."

Survey To Be Taken In January On Employment

Information on the number of different persons who worked at any time during 1950 will be obtained as a part of the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey in January, it was announced today by District Supervisor Donald P. Watkins from his office at Boyne City, Mich. The Current Population Survey interviews each month a representative cross-section of 25,000 households throughout the United States, including a number in the East Jordan area, Mr. Watkins said.

Three out of every five persons of working age reported some work for pay or profit in 1949, according to a similar survey conducted in December last year. In all, some 67½ million persons either worked for wages or operated a business, profession or a farm at some time during 1949. Many of these—housewives and students, in the main—worked only for a limited period, however, and the average number employed in any one week in 1949 was but 58 3/4 million.

This year, special questions will again be addressed to all persons of working age in order to determine the number who had work experience of any kind during 1950, how long they worked, and what their principal job was. With mounting labor shortages, it is important to know the amount and kinds of work that such persons as students, older people, and married women with young children are able to do and to what extent these persons can be expected to fill the gaps left by those who enter the armed forces or transfer to defense industries.

These special questions are in addition to the regular ones on employment which are asked each month in the Current Population Survey. In November, employment was estimated at 61.3 million, the highest level ever reported for that time of year. Unemployment, which had been dropping steadily since the early part of the summer, rose slightly to 2.2 million in November as many students and housewives entered the labor market in search of Christmas jobs.

The survey will be conducted in the East Jordan area during the week of January 15-20. Supervisor Watkins emphasized that all information furnished the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence and only statistical summaries are ever published.

Donald P. Watkins,
District Supervisor.

Antrim County Farm Bureau

Do you realize that being a Farm Bureau member gives you a chance to help shape agriculture's future? United in a powerful organization farmers can make their own farm programs. The national farm policy should be a policy the farmers choose for themselves, not something developed outside agriculture and handed to the farmers to take whether he likes it or not. It must be the farmer's own policy, discussed and decided upon by the farmers themselves all over the country.

There are more than a million and a quarter Farm Bureau members and each one has a definite part in forming the U. S. agricultural policy. Each one has an influence and voice through his organization. And this voice gains strength starting with the Community Farm Bureau, then the county Farm Bureau, on to the state and national Federation.

Individually the farmer is almost helpless to cope with his problems. But as part of a strong organization, farmers facing similiar problems can decide what programs they need and see to it that they are put into effect.

Farm Bureau offers this opportunity.

SIMPLE STEPS SPEED MEAL PREPARATION

School days are rush days with little time left for meal preparation. Ruth Ingalls, of the foods and nutrition department of Michigan State College's school of homeconomics, has a few suggestions to help the busy housewife in the job of getting three meals a day.

First, she advises planning ahead — menus, marketing and last minute preparation.

Second, keep your menus simple. Fewer fancy dishes mean less dish washing time, too.

Third, do some early preparation of main dishes or desserts, if possible.

Fourth, don't attempt new recipes when the time is limited.

Menus and marketing lists should be planned so that weekly trips to the grocery or market will be sufficient. Menus should be planned so that complicated dishes will be used on the least busy days.

Some things may be made ahead of time and stored. Now that a wide variety of foods may be frozen, early preparation is easy.

Last minute preparation must be carefully planned. Use large salads and omit dessert, she advises.

Package mixes help to cut time. Plan to prepare the food requiring the longest cooking time first. Anything which should be served cold (like certain puddings) must be prepared first.

Good plans must be used to insure a nutritious meal as well as a quick meal, Miss Ingalls concludes.

PATTERNS CAN BE ALTERED TO FIT

Although choosing a pattern of the correct size will reduce the need for altering it to a minimum, we often have to make changes in it before cutting out our dress.

How to make some of the common alterations quickly and correctly is discussed by Mary Gephart, Michigan State College clothing instructor.

For example, she advises what to do if a four-gore skirt is found to be two inches too small through the hips. First, draw a cutting line parallel with the straight-of-the goods marks of the pattern in about the center of the skirt gore. Extend it from the waistline to the lower edge of the pattern. Cut along this line almost to the waistline and spread the two pieces of the pattern one-half inch at the hip.

A piece of tissue or other paper can be pinned or fastened in place with transparent tape and the new straight of material marked in the center of the slash. The half-inch spread at the hip will give several inches of additional flare in the bottom of the skirt. This my seem undesirable but it is necessary for most figures with the larger hips to have added flare at the bottom of the skirt.

When a paper pattern is not wide or large enough, cut a straight line from the edge of the pattern through the area where extra material is needed and spread, pinning tissue or other paper under the opening. This will make the bust, waist, hip or sleeve measurements larger. To shorten a sleeve take part of the extra length out about the elbow and part below. To shorten or lengthen a sleeve be sure to place the alteration line at right angles to the straight-of-the-goods marking.

Homemaking Hints

Perhaps the most common erros in cooking is the use of wrong measurements. Measuring cups and spoons may vary greatly in size. Level, rounding or heaping spoonfuls give quite different measures.

Using unsifted cake flour, when the recipe calls for sifted flour, may change a light feathery cake nto a bready, compact one. A cup of unsifted cake flour often measures 1 1/3 cups after sifting.

When substituting cornstarch for flour remember that the starch has about twice the thickening power of flour. Use about one-half the amount of cornstarch.

Adding lemon juice to a lemon pie filling before cooking may result in a thin filling. Add the lemon juice at the end. It will also keep more of the natural lemon flavor.

SHORT STORY

Take The Lead

By Sidney Du Broff

MISS PARISH drove her ancient automobile along the deserted highway toward home. Her deep satisfaction was justifiable in view of the successful play she had produced and directed that evening. Nothing Broadway would care to see, but a huge triumph for the amateurs of Deep Valley High School.

3-Minute Fiction

Even Mr. Wilks, principal of Deep Valley High, who was never lavish in his praise had said, "Miss Parish, we are extremely proud to have you as a member of our faculty. I speak for the town as well as its school."

Now it was over, except for the party she was giving for the cast.

Miss Parish applied pressure to the accelerator. Being detained at the theatre had made her late. She knew the cast would already be arriving at her home.

As she rounded the sharp turn in the road she heard a sudden noise followed by a loud hiss. The car pitched from side to side almost running off the road. Miss Parish fought desperately to regain control. The automobile straightened itself out, gradually losing momentum. She brought it to a stop.

She emerged from the disabled automobile. It was too dark to see anything. She opened the trunk and lit a match. "No jack! Now what am I going to do?"

Miss Parish sat down on the running board. "I suppose I could walk back to town and get help . . . or I could stop a passing car—if there was one." She retained her position on the running board.

In the distance appeared a set of headlights. Miss Parish took a small handkerchief from her purse and waved it at the on-coming car. It slowed down somewhat, but then resumed its speed and disregarded the appeal for aid.

SHE waited for what seemed like a long time before another automobile came into sight. As one loomed near she waved her handkerchief hopefully. It came to a screeching halt alongside her own car.

"What seems to be the trouble, Miss?"

"I had a blow-out and I don't have a jack."

"Fear no more, my lady," a man said, getting out of his car. "I'm certain there is at least one around somewhere."

"You're a life saver."

"Wait a minute," the man said. "Come over here near the headlights."

She hesitated. "But, why . . ."

He took her arm, guiding her to where he could see her face.

"Roberta!" he cried out. "It's you!"

"Yes, Wayne."

"You recognized my voice—and you tried to keep me from knowing who you were.—Why?"

"I explained all of that to you in the note I left," she said.

"Note nothing. I've been looking for you for six months. I was ready to notify the police."

"No, Wayne, I . . ."

"I'm in love with you, Roberta. I want to marry you."

"I can't," she answered.

"Why can't you?"

"I'm in love with you, Roberta. I want to marry you," Wayne said.

"Because your success means too much to you . . . and to me."

"I can't have success without you, Roberta."

"You can't have it with me," she retorted, tears forming in her eyes. "The play you produced with me in the lead flopped. It flopped because I wasn't good enough for the part."

"It was a bad play Roberta."

"It was a good play," she said defiantly. "Don't you see, Wayne, you'd go on producing plays with me in the lead and everyone would flop because I'm just not good enough for Broadway."

"Is it somebody else?"

"No," she answered. "I'm the dramatic coach at Deep Valley High School. It doesn't pay as much as Broadway . . . but at least I can handle the part."

"Roberta, come back—"

"I belong here Wayne. Just as you belong on Broadway. We each have what we want, —or almost what we want. Now help me change the tire; I'm giving a party for my cast tonight."

Chicken Hearted Audience

Milton Berle tells of the touring circus in Europe, which advertised, that an 83-year-old man would dive 90 feet into six inches of water. The place was jammed, and then the bent, bearded and wizened man walked out onto the platform.

"I am 83 years old," he announced, in a thin, wailing voice, "83 years old. And to make a living, I have to dive 90 feet into that tub. Imagine your own fathers, or grandfathers—at the age of 83 having to dive 90 feet. A young person could get killed doing such a thing, and I'm 83. Tell me," he wept, "shall I dive?"

"NO," the touched audience shouted in chorus.

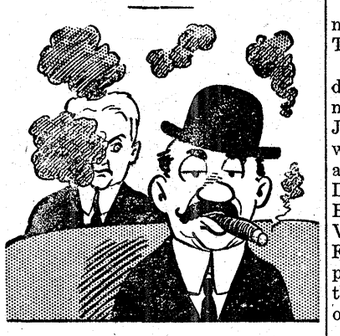

"Then," said the 83-year-old man, "will you please clear the stadium and make room for the next audience?"

The Last Time

A problem child was becoming too well acquainted with the principal's office. One day the principal showed her annoyance. "This makes the fifth time I have punished you this week. What have you to say for yourself?"

"I'm glad it's Friday."

KNOW THYSELF

On a trip to London, Andrew Carnegie was seated in the non-smoking carriage when one of the passengers lit an evil-smelling stogie.

"This is not a smoking car," protested Mr. Carnegie.

"All right, governor," replied the man. "I'll just finish this one cigar." But after finishing it, he pulled out a second stogie.

"See here," warned Carnegie, "if you persist, I will notify the guard at the next station." And he handed the man his card to let him know whom he was annoying. The smoker glanced at the card, stuck it in his pocket, and touched a match to his stogie. At the next station, however, he changed to another carriage.

Still angered at the man's insolence, Carnegie reported the incident to the guard and demanded that some action be taken. The guard hurried away, but returned a few minutes later with a card in his hand.

"If I were you," he advised, "I would'nt try to prosecute that man. He just gave me his card. He's Andrew Carnegie."

Asleep at Her Post

Policeman: "And just how did the accident happen?"

Meek Tourist: "My wife fell asleep in the back seat."

HOW STRANGE!

A male nurse in a mental hospital noticed a patient with his ear close to the wall listening intently. The patient held up a finger as a warning for him to be very quiet; then beckoned him over and said: "You listen here."

The nurse put his ear to the wall and listened for some time, then turned to the patient and said: "I can't hear anything."

"No," said the patient, "and it's been like that all day."

Humane

Boss: "Why are you quitting, Joe? Are your wages too low?"

Joe: "Nope, wages are OK, but I'm keeping a horse out of a job."

ANCIENT JOKE

The farmer, his business in town concluded, was driving homeward when he heard the fire siren and dutifully guided his horse and wagon to the curb. After the engine whizzed by he started up again. But the hook-and-ladder truck came zooming along and smashed squarely into the farmer's wagon.

"Didn't you hear the siren?" asked the cop as he helped the farmer from the wreckage.

"Yes, and I let 'em go by," said the farmer. "And then along came that truckload of drunken painters!"

Practical Nurse Training Class Starting Jan. 29th

The ninth class of the North Central School for Practical Nursing starts four months of theory work at the center in Traverse City, Monday, January 29, prior to seven months of practical training in affiliated hospitals.

Applicants numbering 20 have already been approved, and up to 35 will be accepted. Graduates will serve in hospitals and homes of Northern and Central Michigan.

Students will be paid after four months of training. They must be between the ages of 18 and 50 years, and if under 25 have a mininum of two years in high school.

PN centers are designed to relieve the acute shortage of nursing persons through furnishing one year of semi-professional training. Part-time work and a scholarship loan fund may be available for those seeking financial assistance. Further information may be obtained by writing the school or telephoning its office, 2977.

Servicing 29 counties in North-Central Michigan, the school is the largest of six state practical nursing centers, excepting the original one at Detroit. It is unique in having a branch at Bay City, several male students listed among trainees and graduates, and the avilability of actual bedside practice during the theory period of four months training.

The course is conducted under state supervision through Traverse City schools vocational division with aid of a Kellogg Foundation grant. Instructors are registered nurses or otherwise qualified to handle training.

Graduate practical nurses usually earn three-fourths of the RN pay scale, and the range for private duty averages $8-$11 per day.

FIFTH Grade — Sadie Liskum

In social science we have been studying the Delta Country in the South. We have learned how people are healthier because they are better fed since they rotate their crops. Before the County Agr'l Agents and Home Demonstration Agents began to work with the farmers, the poor people lived on fat salt pork, corn-bread, and molasses. Now the poor people keep a cow and a flock of chickens, raise a garden and can fruit and vegetables. The boys and girls are joining 4-H Clubs and they help improve living conditions on the farms.

Friday we had a health lesson from the Wolverine Health Bulletin. We learned how fatigue makes people cross and less efficient. We can't do our best work or have the most fun if we don't get enough rest. Most of the children in our room stay up too late.

We have started new units in reading. The Independent Class is working with, "Days and Deeds", our new Scott Foresman 5th grade readers. The Standard Class is working with a Social Science reader called, "Our Country."

FIFTH Grade — E. Dhaseleer

We have a new girl in our room. She is Mary Pardee from Wayne.

We have been studying about the sun and the planets, also the stars. We have several good books on astronomy.

We are beginning our study of fractions. They are not so hard if we get one step at a time.

Skating is good this week so we are having one short and one long recess to make it worthwhile to put on our skates.

SIXTH Grade — Mr. Malone

The seventh grade played the sixth grade in basketball Monday. They won 10-7.

Dick Carson has moved to Flint.

We are having a lot of fun skating at the skating rink at school.

We are studying "How Airplanes Fly" in science, and Switzerland in geography.

Some of the girls in this room brought their dolls to school last week.

The grade school had an assembly last Friday. Three girls in our room carried the flag. We did not give anything for the program this time but hope to next time. We also had our club meeting last Friday.

Vera Judy and Fayth Redmer made a January calendar for the room.

Reporter, Suzanne Cutler.

SIXTH Grade — Alma Larsen

Mrs. Larsen put a winter sports scene up on our bulletin board of some children skating, skiing, and sliding down hill. We have cotton-like cloth for snow. — Patsy VonSoosten.

Monday, Jan. 15th we had our election of room monitors. Jack Brown, our president, took charge of the meeting. — Judy Lick.

Terry Meyers has a touch of rheumatic fever so she will not be back to school for a while. We miss her very much. — Sonja Olson.

We have a new Skilltext Reader about Uncle Funny Bunny. We are also using Skilltext Phonics Readers to help us in reading. — Freddie Palmiter.

We have been having tests in arithmetic. They are very easy. The kind we are having cover adding fractions. We soon will be having subtracting fractions and mixed numbers. — Sharon Hayes.

The 22nd of December Arthur Werth had an attack of appendicitis. He spent his Christmas in the hospital. A week later he returned to school. He got sick the next week and hasn't come back yet. — Norman Rice.

We have started having a half hour reading period each morning to read stories we like. — JoAnn Bader.

We have started to study France. We looked up about the Sarre Basin, how it is controlled, any why it is important. — JoAnn Bader.

Eunice Bradshaw has started a 4-H Club. We named it the Knittin' and Stitchin' Club. Judy Dressel is president; Karen Bradshaw, vice-president; Judy Lilak, sec'y; Rachel Webster, health and recreation director; Alma Moore, reporter. The first thing we are making is a hot pad. We will meet every Friday night at Eunice Bradshaw's house. — Alma Moore

Non-Partisan News Letter

Hardly had smoke from the inaugural salute blown away when Governor Williams had legislative G. O. P. leders in to puff a peace pipe and discuss a method of cooperation. Republicans were suspicious. Says Senator G. Elwood Bonine (R Vandalia): Republicans are willing to cooperate for the good of the state but will judge Williams' sincereity by his actions.

Asked if there were G. O. P. "strings" attached to its cooperation, Williams would say only "let's watch this thing grow awhile before we say anything further."

In budget-pinched Michigan, legislators are committed to scrape up funds for civil defense. Some defense leaders urge consideration of a "sub-capitol" from which the state could be governed if the Lansing offices were bombed. The lawmakers look at the accounts and say nothing.

But an organization similar to the Forest Fire Service of World War II is being considered. Methods of combating subversive or actual open fire warfare in forested acreage was studied by state fire wrdens at their annual meeting January 8-11.

The spectre of added taxes is stalking the legislative changers. Will it mean a personal income tax as was discussed two years ago? Most lawmakers agree that more corporation taxes would be paid by the consumer. An alternative, more sales taxes, is lagging in popularity.

Corrections Commissioner Ernest Brooks returned from his vacation to step into a hail of criticism that he has been too lenient with his paroles. Says Brooks: "I have done nothing not within my authority".

Governor Williams has made Camp Grayling available to Indiana's National Guard. The Hoosier training camp, Camp Atterbury, has been taken over by the army.

Michigan farmers are asking if ceiling prices on grains will be applied during 1951. They will need to buy grains if they are to effect livestock increases. Since the national stockpile of feed grains totals nearly a billion bushels it is doubtful if ceiling will be imposed during the year.

The liquor control commission is still in a lather. Chairman Harry Henderson has been replaced by Allan B. Milham, Kalamazoo, but Henderson says he will not give up the job until his successor is approved by the senate. He hints at court action even though his term expired December 15.

The governor's supporters embarrassed him at a harmony banquet by booing when it was announced that Republican Lieutenant Governor William C. Vandenberg had sent his regrets. Vandenburg says he forgot his tux.

Kit Clardy, Lansing Attorney and co-founder of "Fighting Republicans, Inc.," jumps back into the spotlight with a series of radio broadcasts in the Capitol City and in Flint. His theme: "I am so reactionary I don't like to pay taxes to raise prices to require more taxes". Clardy was defeated by Blackney in the 1950 race for congress.

He dubs himself a conservative and refers to Washington as the home of the "small bore second raters".

As the 59th administration gets underway in Lansng, the governor is house hunting. Owner of the house he rented ($275 per month) for two years wants to sell. New state mansion? With a $21,311,-232 deficit last year, legislators probably will make short rift of the biennial suggestion that Michigan build a home for its governors.

The automobile industry is breathing easier. A sudden spurt in new defense contracts and easing of aluminum restrictions brought on the sudden good humor. After Governor Williams' trip to Washington, procurement agencies suddenly announced new contracts with auto makers to produce trucks, jeeps, shells and other military equipment.

Michigan's 1949 "three man" grand jury law, requiring the service of three circuit court judges for indictments, has been under fire of the State Bar of Michigan and the state association of prosecuting attorneys. The new law bans granting of immunity to witnesses—a controversial feature of the old "one-man" grand jury law. The state groups criticize the new law as unworkable. During the past 18 months no three judge jury has been in action. A commitee was created by the 1950 legislature to study the matter.

Michigan can expect drastic action from the governor's office to hold down expenses in every department not directly concerned with civil defense or war effort.

Williams has committed himself to an economy program which just won't stay still for unwarranted expense.

After asking for $37,000,000 to clean up last year's expenses, Williams startled legislature by submitting a fairly modest budget for the coming year. He seems determined to get along with Republican factions—highest barrier so far as money is concerned is his welfare program.

The bi-partisan sentiment still prevails--as it always does in the early days of the regular session. But Ex-Gov. Murrary D. Van Wagoner says there should be a liaison man between the"front office" and the legislature.

Most agree that Clark Adams, legal advisor to Williams who also serves in liaison cepacity is capable but he is a Williams appointee. Van Wagoner's theory involves a man selected by an objective group if such a group exists.

The highway department is principle beneficiary of the money requested by Williams. Some $19,000,000 would go to the road builders, $10,000,000 of which already has been collected and needs only earmarking, and $9,000,000 to complete projects already begun.

A good question—would a gas tax boost increase gasoline prices? Advocates of the two-cent rise (making a total of five cents) say oil companies will absorb most of the differences in order to keep prices as nearly level as possible between states. The added tax, twice defeated, has its best chanse of all this year. It would add $32,000,000 to a defunct Michigan bank account.

Owen J. Cleary, Sigler's liquor control commission chairman, is expected to seek (and win) reelecton as Republican state chairman. Convention is Feb. 17, in Detroit.

The army has asked for 183 nurses from Michigan by February. The state already has a shortage of nurses just as does every other state. Solution? Make the pay sufficient to attract women to a long arduous training. Trainees now must pay much of the shot for their own medical education.

Wayne university can be fairly sure of its $3,000,000 request for a new medical science building. Already granted $112,000 in 1950 for ground work, a medical conscious legislature is not expected to demur at the last moment—budget or not.

Full mobilization would hit the state hardest at the conservation department. It would lose 200 to 300 employees. World war II grabbed off 231 of its workers for service.

Michigan park visitors last year spent $347,000 for hot dogs and soda pop at state parks. Wars and troubled futures never hurt the wiener business.

Question from reader: "If the state's fiscal year deficit was $21 million, why was the average daily deficit only $100,000?" The State of Michigan began the past fiscal year (starting July 1, 1949) with a balance of $24,357,130. The state spent $40 million more than it received in revenues. The year end deficit of $21 million otherwise would have been much greater — possibly $40,745,493 — the exact red-ink entry.

Forgotten, Nothing . . . We're Your Neighbors!

No, sir, Mr. White Collar Worker, we farmers haven't forgotten you. We're your neighbors. We grow the fiber to make your collar. And we grow the food for the folks who make the collar. We grow your food, too, and we hope it keeps you in top shape for your job. We know that your job . . . like our job . . . is important.

We stay so busy on the farm that we seldom have time to visit with you. You see, our days are much longer than yours; we often go from long before sun-up 'til long after sun-down. That's why we have to depend upon our farmer cooperatives to see that our farm products are marketed—marketed in the best shape for you.

Our farmer cooperatives also purchase for us the things you make, and they help us to be better neighbors to you, your boss, and your fellow workers. Yes, you all eat our food and wear the clothes made from the fiber we grow.

Because cooperatives save money for us by helping us obtain our supplies—and by marketing our crops—we in turn can pass these savings on to you, your boss, and your fellow workers, by furnishing you with higher quality food at lower prices.

We're all neighbors. And better neighbors because of our farmer cooperatives.
